LIONEL'S CHOICE

Holistic Nutrition

Developed by an acclaimed nutritionist and consulting veterinarian, providing a complete and balanced diet for all breeds.

Protect. Love

OUR STORY

The birth of Lionel's Choice

A clear mission

Lionel was a working dog, and like many other dogs, he suffered from severe skin allergies. These were attributed to allergens found in his feed. The predicament of this working dog deeply moved Lionel, our founder (who shares the same name). The mission was clear, to develop a holistic diet that supports gut, skin, and coat health.

Mission objectives:

Develop a fixed feed formulation suitable for all breeds regardless of their frame size.

Its contents had to consist of quality ingredients with fewer potential allergens minimising the risk of adverse reactions towards certain ingredients.

Include natural supplements supporting the immune system in coping with potential allergic triggers.

Be affordable, as many service and shelter dogs are reliant on food supplied via state tender or donations, often lacking in the nutritional elements needed by service dogs.

An acclaimed animal nutritionist and consulting veterinarian took up the challenge, and so the brand known today as Lionel's Choice was born.

Lionel's Choice Canine Food

A holistic approach to comprehensive support.

A holistic approach to comprehensive support.

Gut Support

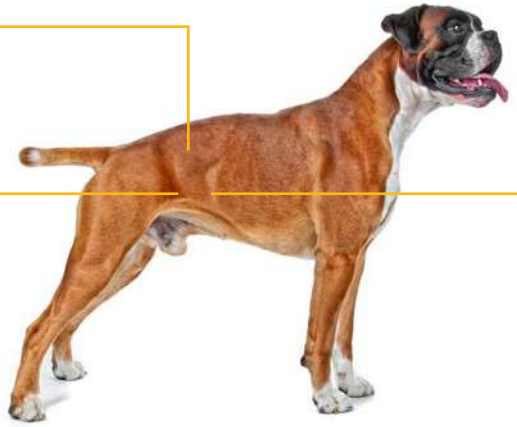

Gut health is much more than just ensuring good digestion of food. In Lionel's Choice we have a focus on maintaining the gut barrier an important line of defense in the immune system. Supporting the establishment of a healthy gut microbiome and ensuring good digestibility of food for maximum nutrition.

Gut Barrier Support:

Botanical extracts and Butyrate. Butyrate is a fatty acid that provides energy for epithelial cells in the stomach and intestinal tract lining. In the Intestinal tract the epithelial cells use this energy to promote the growth of villi, structures that aid in the absorption of nutrients. Butyrate also helps to stabilise tight junctions of epithelial cells in the small intestine, to ensure secure barrier against pathogens and unwanted metabolites entering the bloodstream. Chestnut tannins are rich in natural polyphenols to provide antioxidant support to help protect the body against the health-damaging effects of free radicals.

Microbiome support:

Chicory root is an excellent source of Inulin a mono-oligosaccharide. The inulin is a prebiotic, which means that it is a source of energy for the microbes that inhabit the gastro-intestinal tract of your dog. By supplying a readily available energy source, we ensure that the gut microbiome flourishes. Chestnut tannins to help maintain and ideal GIT microbial balance, and to reduce fermentation metabolites that my negatively impact GIT health.

Digestive support:

A blend of soluble and insoluble fibre ensures that food passage rate allows for enough time for adequate absorption without causing constipation and helps with the feeling of satiety.

A holistic approach to comprehensive support.

Skin and Coat Health

To understand skin and coat health one must first understand the function of the skin. The primary functions of skin are to protect, regulate and sense.

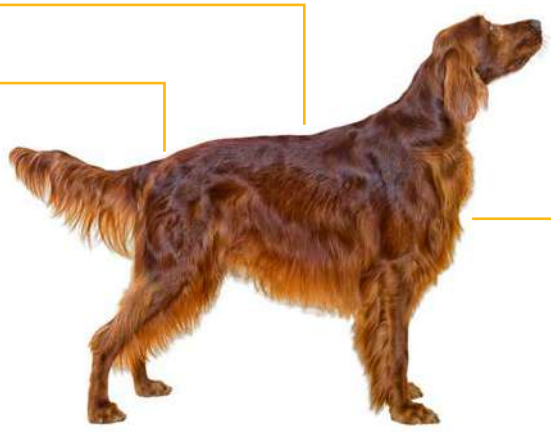

Skin health and membrane flexibility:

Fatty acids play an important role in skin and coat health, both in a direct manner and indirect. Much like amino acids are building blocks of protein. Fatty Acids are the building blocks of fats. Some fatty acids are considered essential and are obtained through the dog's diet. Dogs require long chain fatty acids from the Omega 6 and 3 groups for optimal health. Omega 6 and 3 fatty acids are important for skin health and membrane flexibility.

The epidermal barrier matrix:

Omega 6 fatty acids such as linoleic acid is considered essential for dogs. The outer layer of the epidermis, consist of flat keratin filled cells held together by lipids(fats). The lipid matrix consists mostly of ceramides, cholesterol, and free fatty acids. Linoleic acid is used as structural building block in long chain fatty acids that form the ceramides essential for the epidermal barrier matrix.

The Omega 3 essential fatty acids for dogs are alpha-linolenic acid (ALA), eicosapentaenoic acid (EPA) and docosahexaenoic acid (DHA). These essential fatty acids compete with arachidonic acid to be converted into biologically active lipids known to play roles in inflammation and immune response.

Managing allergies:

The combination and ratio of Omega 6 to 3 fatty acids are important to manage itchy skin conditions such as allergies and atopic dermatitis in dogs. Lionel's Choice contains ingredients such as Canola and poultry oil which are both excellent sources of Omega 6 and 3 fatty acids.

These guidelines are for average conditions. Your puppy's requirements may vary depending on breed, age, sex, environment and activity and level. Monitor your puppy's weight and make feeding adjustments as necessary. Do not overfeed your puppy. If there is food left over after one hour, remove it. This will help keep your puppy on schedule. Feed your puppy with the same food at the same time each day. Abrupt changes in your puppy's diet may cause stomach upset and diarrhea. When switching to a new food, gradually transition him to the new food by mixing proportions of both foods until you slowly phase out the old food. If you are mixing water with dry food, you should mix 4 parts dry food to 1 part water. Clean your puppy's food and water bowls daily. Once your puppy begins to eat solid food they should be fed three time per day. After six months, daily recommendations may be divided into two to four meals. For puppies over six months, one daily feeding should meet their needs.
